

CLAIMS

I claim:

1. A floor rack for holding bathroom sundries, said floor rack comprising:

a base;

an upright support rod extending from said base; and a first holder fastened with a top end of said upright support rod for holding a paper towel roll ready to serve;

wherein said upright support rod is provided with a second holder fastened therewith whereby said second holder has a fastening portion fastened to said upright support rod, a holding arm for holding a standby paper towel roll, and a ring for holding a container.

2. The floor rack as defined in claim 1, wherein said upright support rod is provided in an outer wall with two retaining slots; wherein said fastening portion of said second holder is provided with two retaining projections whereby said second holder is detachably fastened with said upright support rod such that said two retaining projections of said second holder are removably retained in said two retaining slots of said upright support rod.

3. The floor rack as defined in claim 2, wherein said upright support rod is provided with a third holder detachably fastened therewith for holding miscellaneous items whereby said third holder is provided with two retaining projections and is detachably fastened with said upright support rod in such a manner that said two retaining projections of said third holder are removably retained in said two retaining slots of said upright support rod.

4. The floor rack as defined in claim 3, wherein said upright support rod is provided with a hollow interior, an insertion hole in communication with said hollow interior, and a fourth holder having a locating portion and a holding arm for holding a standby power towel roll whereby said fourth holder is detachably fastened with said upright support rod such that said locating portion of said fourth holder is removably located in said hollow interior of said upright support rod via said insertion hole of said upright support rod.